

Savoring the Last Days of Summer

In the Pacific Northwest summer is the time of year when the beauty of the region comes alive. No place is this more evident than on the outdoor tennis courts at the tennis clubs, tennis centers, schools, and regional parks where tennis players gather to enjoy the sunshine and at the same time do what we love most...play tennis! With the beginning of fall, tennis players in the PNW savor the last days of outdoor tennis before the seasonal change brings us all back indoors, but the memories of the summer season will keep our batteries charged for the long winter ahead. We are lucky to have so many great indoor tennis facilities in the region so we can keep doing what we love most...play tennis!
